

July 8, 1997

Re: Regulations regarding footwear of customers

Dear Mr. Shakely:

In response to your question, South Carolina does not specify a dress code for customers. However, some establishments form their own dress code which may include shoes and then attribute their dress code to the health department.

The attire of a customer would have little, if any, affect on the wholesomeness of the food.

Yours truly,

E. O'Neal Dufford, REHS
Assistant Director
Division of Food Protection
Bureau of Environmental Health

EO'ND:slc